Again in the eighth Dahlen, after picking up Ely's grounder, failed to force O'Brien at second base for an easy third out and threw wild

He gave but one base on balls and was a complete puzzle except in the fourth inning, when the Pittsburgs bunched four singles for three runs that inder the old rules would have been earned. Barring the errors by Dahlen, the Brooklyns played a fine fielding game. Daly, Cross, Jannings and Kennedy made plays that caused the crowd to break into cheering. In affeition to their clever fielding, the Champloss further convinced the cranks that they are beginning to strike their proper batting gait. They disposed of Pitcher Phillippe in the third inning, and acting Capt. Cooley then substituted the celebrated left-hander, "Rube" Waddell. The latter started out like a whirlwind, but in the fifth inning the Brooklyns got onto his twisters and Kelley made the longest hit of the season for a home run. The ball sailed far over O'Brien's head, and on the first bound it shot over the picket fence into the space occupied by the clubhouse.

Kelley's batting, by the way, was one of the features. He made a safe drive every time he came to the batt. Jones also did good work with the stick by knocking out three singles, while Jennings, with a single and a triple, was not far behind him. The visitors made many brilliant plays in the face of the cannonading that was kept up, Beaumont hauling down several would-be doubles, and Ely robbing Keeler of what looked like a base hit with a fine lefthanded stop and a lightning throw. Big Hans Wagner distinguished himself in the third inning by gathering in a line smash from Dahlen's bat and neatly throwing Keiley out at the plate with yards to spare. O'Connor was injured in the third inning by a collision with Jennings at the plate and in the fifth inning he retired in favor of Zimmer. The visitors, for the first time since they appeared as Washington Park, indulged in rowdyism. Wagner kicked over a called strike in the first inning, and Cooley made a howl over a similar ruling in the second. Beaumont, Wagner and Cooley took a rush at Umpire Swartwood when he called a hard hit by Beaumont a foul, as it struck close to the right field foul line, in the seventh inning. The only kick made by the Brooklyns was in the eighth, when Swartwood called Ely safe at first on Dahlen's high t

Now, it is not hard to persuade even the most violent old graduates that coaching is right and necessary—real coaching, not lejune babbiement from all the team at once. But aside from the offensiveness of hearing several voices yelling, "Right over the pani" "That's the way!" "Ohi isn't that a beauty." &c. ad nauseam, it would be found pretty hard to convince any one that it does the pitcher much good, after the ball has left his hand, to have an infielder shout, "Hit it," in tones that can be heard as far as this same man can bat. Perhaps this is coaching, but that is not the urfly term the casual onlooker has for it. And whatever it is called, it is not what the majority of Princeton men care to have displayed before the public as being representative of Princeton for whom the rest of us also do some work.

Imagine inviting a man to play golf, and then harking at him when he addreases the ball at the tea. A different game? Nonsense. It is not an iota different with respect to the principle involved. The only reason it seems different at first glance is that we have become unconsciously accustomed, in some cases which have dragged this one entirely American sport of ours down into a condition which is making many ask the unpleasant question. Is baseball a gentleman's game?

Baseball will be reformed, of course: if for no other NEW YORK, 8; ST. LOUIS, O.

The New Yorks ran away from the St. Louis team at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and won the game in easy fashion. The Cardinals were shut out for the first time this year. The truth of the matter was they could not hit Mercer, who made his first appearance on the Polo Grounds as a pitcher for the locals. It looked at first as though the visitors would find him easy, as the first batter up hit him for a single. The next man lined a terrific smash which Doyle pulled down, doubling up the first man. Mercer, who appeared unsteady, then sent Donlin to first on balls, but Burkett was an easy third out. In the next inning, with two out, Dillard rapped the ball to centre for a base, and in the third Hughey and Keister ande singles, but the side was retired without a tally. No more hits were made off Mercer until the eighth, when Keister scratched in a fly which foll safe between Davis and Van Haltren. These five hits constituted the sum total of the visitors' stick work. Mercer gave only one base on balls and his work in the box was remarkably good. The New Yorks won the game in the third. With one out, Mercer received a free pass. Then followed singles in succession by Smith, Gleason and Selbach, a double by Davis, another safe one by Doyle, and a two-barger by Van Haltren. When the smoke cleared away it was found that six men had crossed the plate. In the fifth Davis cot a life on Dillard's wild throw of his grounder. He was advanced on hits by Doyle and Van Haltren and scored on a force. In the seventh, with two out, Doyle singled and recorded the New Yorks' last taily on Van Haltren's two-barger to left. The change in their batting order seemed to work well. MoGraw's ankle is so badly swellen as a result of Doyle knocking him down in Saturday's game that he is unable to walk. BOSTON, June 11.—The locals pulled out with a victory in an interesting game to day. Garvin had the home team completely at his mercy for six innings, allowing but four hits during that period. Cuppy baffled Chicago for seven innings, and they should not have scored until the eighth had Long held Shahl's throw in time to catch Ryan at second. In the seventh Cuppy got a safe hit, Long's gift and several errors being accountable for two more runs. MUCKERISM" ON THE BALL PIBLD. The "Alamni Princetonian" Protests and Calls for a Beform. PRINCETON, June 11 .- The Alumni Princetonian has taken the university baseball team to task for so-called "muckerism" on the diamond, and urges it to put itself on record as the first of the college nines to have taken a step toward the reformation of the game. It says:

Taking human nature as it is, all Princeton grad-within the campus, because they produce manly sweat and right ideals and good fun, but also that in-

ask the unpleasant question, is baseball a gentle-man's game?

Baseball will be reformed, of course; if for no other reason than that it is American. There will come a reaction in a year or two. All matured persons who have followed thoughtfully the development of the amateur spirit in this country know that. The pity is that Princeton might so easily take the lead, and get the credit for it. Such a sturdy team would probably win out anyway. Just as a matter of policy, if better reasons are not effective, it would be such a shrewd move. The opportunity is almost past.

ELMIRA, June 11 .- It is probable the Atlantic League has seen its last day of the present season.

League has seen its last day of the present season. Reading came here with a few professionals and more amateurs. They had trouble of their own over the payment of salaries and so had the Elmiras. James J. Corbett was here to day to play first base for Elmira and was to receive 45 per cent of the proceeds. There was an attendance of 3.500 and while Corbett was alumbering on the bag a representative of the Elmira players attached the gate receipts for back salaries. When the game was over Corbett protested, but in valu, and it is not likely he can secure his due. The Atlantic League has been in poor financial condition for a week. It is probable Elmira will seek to obtain the Oswego franchise in the State League.

Catcher Alex Smith of the Brooklyns has refused to go to the Hartford club, and is consequently unable to draw any salary. His case will be looked into by the newly formed Protective Association of Profes-sional Ball Players, it is said.

at the Polo Grounds yesterday morning. He digitator Squeezes Through in the First Race Apparently Unbacked-Holstein Wins in Clever Fashion for W. C. Whitney. Racegoers awoke yesterday morning to the fact that the Brooklyn Jockey Club's meeting at convenient Gravesend had only four days to run and they turned out 5,000 strong to see the sport and incidentally to get even with the ayers. In the latter respect they blundered further into the financial quagmire which generally traps reckless visitors to the ring. The weather was perfect and for those on simple pleasure bent the outing represented the acme of enjoyment. Followers of Spencer fared particularly well as the "Iceman" put two over the plate at long odds. The Myrtle Stakes came fourth on the card. It was featured as the special event of the day and attracted thirteen entries. Of these Bangor and Charentus were withdrawn on the supposition that a softer sport awaited them in the sixth race. Jack Point, Post Haste, Lothario and Merry Prince were scratched on the general principle of wrecking a stake now and afterward clamoring for more racing when King Frost and feed bills loom up on the winter horizon. When the blue pencil artist got through the card showed seven survivors, with Central Trust a slight favorite over Intrusive. The real factors in the race, Hesper, Sky Scraper and Kinnikinic, were quoted at odds such as the ring trust seldom lays except against "dead Kinnikinic broke in front but immediately dropped back into the bunch, while Sky Scraper took alead of a length or better. Ransch had some difficulty in keeping Hesper within hail but Dry Dollar's breadwinner was all there when it came to driving and he won out by a length. Kinnikinic made one of the belated bluffs for which he is becoming noto-rious and Sky Scraper beat him a head for second place. The start was delayed several minutes by the crazy antics of Half Time, who burnt up all his energy in efforts to get over the fence. As a three-year-old the Dwyer gelding used to be a contender in the best class, but he has developed a temper which no barrier can check. He was at 30 to 1 yesterday, and with fair behavior he would have been much closer up than seventh. Frank McCabe has the on of Hanover as fit a fiddle, and may reap the closer up than seventh. Frank McCabe has the son of Hanover as fit a fiddle, and may reap the reward of his patience before long.

The opening sprint over the short six furlongs brought out a field of twelve and with Meehanus among the missing ones, Buffoon looked like ready money. He was played heavily to beat Kamara but the talent entirely overlooked Prestidigitator partly on account of his carrying No. 13, but chiefly because owner "Pittaburg Phil," made no demonstration. Prestidigitator forced the pace throughout and won by a head from Kamara who beat Buffoon a length. Oliver Mac finished such a close fourth that many onlookers expected to see his number substituted for that of Buffoon.

A crazylot of maiden three-year-olds delayed the start of the second race nearly half an hour. Col. Rue, Good Morrow and Long Isle took turns at spoiling breaks, but they finally got away in fair order. It was anybody's race to the last furiong, where Spencer settled down for one of his gilt-edged rides and literally carried Lord Baltimore over the plate by a head from Nansen. The latter had been badly kicked at the post by Long Isle or the issue might have been different. As it was he beat Cyrano four lengths for the place.

With only four two-year-olds in the third race the market was as unsteady as on a scare day at Wall Street. McAddie opened at 3 to 5 and receded to 8 to 5, owing to a plunge which out All Green's odds from 2 to 1 to even money. McAddie cut loose at a pace that tiptoed the others. He passed the furlong pole in 0:11 i-5, the quarter in 0:224-5, and the three furlongs in 0:35 3-6. Then as no danger threatened, Mitchell let him rate home two lengths in front of All Green, who beat Fair Rosamond a neck.

Plungers at once recalled the race of June 5 when McAddie beat Holstein and the latter was immediately underlined as a "good thing" for the fifth race. Backed irom 7 to 5 to even money W. C. sweat and right ideals and good fun, but also that intercollegiate athletics are one of the most important, because the most conspicuous, means of giving the public at large an idea of what kind of a college this particular one is. That is why they feel so strongly about the matter of muckerism on the baseball field. Muckerism is one of the milder of many terms that one graduate has had occasion to hear applied or seen written by other graduates. * Witness the recent game at Princeton with the State College, when the undergraduate audience whisuled and feered at visiting players who, no matter what happened, were guests and ought to be treated as such—unless college sport is not to be the purest amateur sport in our modern civilization.

A rumor, circulated by Pittsburg reporters, has been of considerable annoyance to the Brooklyn club officials. It is to the effect that the Champions are to be transferred to Washington because of poor patronage at home. The Brooklyn officials denied in the most positive manner yesterday that any such move will be made, and declared that they are perfectly satisfied with the business done so far. "We are making money," said they, "and we will be playing in Brooklyn for years to come. We have too much money invested here to make such a change, and, for that matter, we contend that under favorable conditions Brooklyn is a better ball town in every way than Washinston. PHILADELPHIA, June 11 .- After remaining in competition for ten years during which it was held by all of the leading polo teams of the country, the handsome silver cup, offered by A. H. Alden, to-day passed into the permanent ossession of the Devon Polo Club of this city. when, by defeating the crack Rockaway Club, they fulfilled the condition requiring the cup to be won three times before it became the absolute property of any team. It was a high distinction for the local team, because the Alden oup has been longer in competition than any cup now being played for, and also because of the reputation and skill of the team they defeated to-day. the reputation and sail of the team they defeated to-day. Had the victory been the other way, Rockaway would now hold the cup permanently, for they too had held it for two years on well earned victories.

Devon conceded 7 goals to Rockaway on handicaps, and it certainly looked as if they would not overcome the odds. Inch by inch the ground was fought, and slowly the local team climbed toward success. Up to the opening of the final period, Rockaway maintained its lead, the score standing at 9 to 8, they having scored the only goals destined to be theirs during the game.

By the most desperate kind of playing Devon piled up three goals during the last period. During the last few minutes of playing Rockaway came several times dancerously near scoring and once suffered a quarter goal renalty on a safety to prevent Devon from scoring. Devon lost a half goal on a foul by McFadden just before time was called. The final score stood 10½ to 8½ in Devon's favor. The players and handicaps follow:

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN. ENTHUSIASTIC MESTING IN FAVOR OF GOOD ROADS

Long Island Association-Speeches by Gen. Roy Stone and Col. James D. Beil-An Illustrated Lecture by H. B. Fullerton. There was a good roads' meeting in Brooklyr last night that was very much in the nature of a festival. It was hed in the Schwalbach Academy on Flatbush avenue opposite the Willink entrance to Prospect Park and was under the auspices of the Good Roads' Associa tion of Brooklyn and Long Island Nominally it was the semi-annual meeting, the eighth one of that organization, but the only business transacted was the reading of reports by the secretary and treasurer and the naming of a Nomination Committee. For the rest it was an evening of oratory and entertainment. There were five hundred or six hundred persons present, about one-fourth being women. One remarkable circumstance was the presence in almost equal numbers of horsemen and wheelmen and the fraternity of feeling between almost equal numbers of horsemen and wheelmen and the fraternity of feeling between them. The place was specially decorated for the occasion by flags, and on a platform that extended almost across the hall was a display of the several kinds of vehicles that call for good roads and beside them a display of their food. There was a little run-about with pneumatic tires and between the shafts a small bale of hay and bag of oats illustrating the food and motor power of the vehicle. At the other end of the platform was a gasoline automobile and alongside of it a gasolene barrel and a tub of water to represent its motive power. Between these big vehicles were two chainless bicycles with large foot pumps beside them to represent wind as their food supply.

There was a boys' band that furnished music before the meeting and played for dancing after it was over. Col. James D. Bell, President of the association, presided and made the introductory remarks. Fugens La Manna an engineer who has been doing Government work in Porto Rico, and Alex Schwalbach made brief speeches. Then Col. Bell introduced Gen. Roy Stone. After he had finished there was an illustrated lecture by Hal B. Fullerton, chairman of the Highway Improvement Committee of the L. A. W. This was a complete entertainment in itself, and many of the slides showing good and poor roads at home and abroad elicited outbursts of applause. After all this refreshments were served to complete the most varied meeting of the kind ever held, and one that was rated by all the members present to be the most gratifying. On the whole it seemed a long step in advance on the part of the good-roads propagandists, who appear determiled to educate even if they have to entertain in order to do Gen. Roy Stone in his speech presents a novel and surface of the contraction of the con

Gen. Roy Stone in his speech presents a novel and radical proposition for the solution of the good roads problem. His idea of postal savings banks was in the nature of a sensation and it was a theme of lively discussion after the meeting broke up. Gen. Stone travelled rom Washington especially to attend the meeting and he was the chief speaker. In part he said:

the meeting broke up. Gen. Stone travelled rom Washington especially to attend the meeting and he was the chief speaker. In part he said:

"Ten years of active campaigning has exhausted the argument for good roads, and while it has silenced the opposition we must confees that it has not brought that millennium where the country is ready to go down deep into its peckets to build its highways at once and for all. We must in fact admit that people who govern themselves will not tax themselves to build the roads they absolutely need, nor will they generally consent to tax their children's children by borrowing the needed money, though they transmit to them not only the roads themselves but all the vast savings accumulated by their use. Admitting these facts we acknowledge the truth of the strongest impeachment that has been made of self-government, namely that it lacks power to compel temporary sacrifices for the permanent welfare.

"Two plans have occurred to me as hopeful in the course of many years' study of the subject. Either of these means a broader scheme of national action than we have been wont to consider appropriate, but in these days we are expanding in more ways than one. We are even building roads and building thern without let or hindrance or criticism, for all our new peoples, and we may some day do something of the kind for our own Americans. The first plan, which I will only indicate, is to use the postal savings. Every civilized mation but ours and some of the half civilized give their people the benefit of Government savings banks. We refuse it to ours ostensibly because we cannot find a proper investment for their money, but really because the private banking interests of the country stand in watchful opposition to the measure. When this opposition can be overcome, postal savings banks can be established to the general welfare and the money can be invested in country road bonds, guaranteed by the State, these bonds bearing a rate of interest so low that it can be generally paid out of existing without delay and with no increase of taxation and no cost to the Government. Estimating the deposits of the Unitied States postal savings on the basis of those in Great Britain we should have enough to build a million miles of stone or gravel road in ten years. With proper limitations and supervision by State and Federal inspectors good work could be secured and the investment would be a peculiarly safe one, since every dollar invested by a county in good roads adds at least $5 to the value of property in the county and thus multiplies its own security.

good roads adds at least $5 to the value of property in the county and thus multiplies its own security.

"The second plan is based on the experience of our own country in building railroads. We have built half of the railway mileage of the world without taxation except in rare instances and have spent in doing so three times as much money as is needed now to make good wagon roads for the whole country. How have we raised this vast amount? Mainly by anticipating the benefits of the railroads, borrowing the money to build them and letting them pay for themselves out of their earnings or pay such a rate of interest on the money borrowed as will content its owners to let it remain on long loans or in perpetuity. The benefits of improved highways do not show in earnings since their use is free, but they appear quite as plainly in the enhanced value of adjacent and neighboring lands, and if this class of benefits can be anticipated and made available to procure the means of road building we shall be able to build roads as easily as we have built railroads.

"What can the National Government do as a worthy object lesson in this line? It is often easier to do great things than small ones of the same kind, and what the Government undertakes in this regard should be something big enough to excite the imagination and stir the pride and patriotism of the country; something that will put us in respect of roads as far ahead of other nations as we have been behind them heretofore.

"Let it be a national highway, a continental that will put us in respect of roads as far ahead of other nations as we have been behind them heretofore.

"Let it be a national highway, a continental boulevard—the greatest and best road in the world. The time is ripe for it. The old century goes out with the triumphs of war and expansion. Let the new one bring in a triumph of peace and home development. The road should be worthy of its builders and of the age; broad steel tracks for carriages, bicycle bridle, and foot paths; plenty of shade and fountains, plenty of room on the borders for ornamentation, trees and plants.

"The Government is now making at a cost of $11,000 per mile a stone road in Porto Rico which follows the difficult canons of the Arecibo and Portuguey rivers and crosses the precipitous mountains of the Cagey range. Labor is cheap there, but on the other hand, labor-saving machinery is barred out in order that the work may furnish the greatest relief to the starying people. This whole line is more difficult to construct than the worst portion of our national road would be, but ours would be wider and better in many ways, and all things considered, it would not be wise to estimate its cost at less than $20,000 per mile. Through the States a fair distribution of the cost according to the benefits would perhaps be one-fourth to the Federal Government and the same to the State and one-half to the lands in the zone of local benefit. This zone would not be less than five miles wide on each side of the road, making 6,400 acres to the mile of road. Ten thousand dollars for this area would be about $1.50 per acre on the average, but the assessment should be adjusted according to proximity and value."

A NEW PISTIC WRINKLE. Downey's Second Applies Ammonia to His

Eyes and He Loses the Fight. A new wrinkle in the fighting game was de veloped at the Hercules A. C. last night during the combat between Jack Downey of Brooklyn and Billy Moore of Syracuse. After the pair had fought four hard rounds Downey suddenly leaped from his chair and began dancing all over the stage and yelling flercely.

over the stage and yelling flercely.

"Oh, my eyes!" he cried.

The speciators did not know what to make of Downey's strange actions and became interested. Downey's handlers soon came to his rescue and dragged him to his chair. The police filled the ring and in a little while order was restored. When everything was quiet it was explained that one of Down-y's seconds had applied ammonia to the fighter's eyes, nearly blinding him. Of course this lost him the fight. His Iriends, especially those who backed him, did not like the sudden termination of the encounter and hissed. It was quite likely, however, that Downey would have been whipped, for up to the time the battle ended he had received a hard trouncing. Joe ward was the referee.

The preliminary bout was between Alex Dunsheath o. Passaic and Jack Halliday of this city. They met for ten rounds at 110 pouncs, it alliday won. Tony Moral of this city and Jimmy Kelly of Bosion were the second pair. The limit was ten rounds at 122 pounds. The

WITH THE TROTTERS.

Little Gem Beaten on the Speedway by Trotter Without a Record.

E. O. Binzen's rakish iron-gray trotting mare Elmira struck a clip on the Speedway yesterday afternoon which caused the critics to exclaim in admiration, "She's fast enough to go with Caryle Carne, Lucille and Cobwebs." remarkable burst of speed was seen in a brush with Dr. H. H. Kane's midget pacer, Little Gem, 2:15%. The latter horse defeated the Chicago crack, Hontas Crooke, 2:09, not very long ago, and he has been reckoned among the fastest harness horses in New York. Dr. Kane drove him for keeps when he turned with the straight-necked, long-striding gray trotter yesterday, yet Elmira held her own and gradually forged ahead until she was two lengths of more in front of the pacer as she pas point of rocks. Although Gem stuck to his stride and stepped it off at top speed, his owner was not prepared to believe the gray mare could beat him again, and so another brush resulted. Eimira was boiling by this time and she trotted to the front at the start, moving with even, balanced action and with amazing speed. Gen put his head down and dug his toes into the roadbed with the determination of a bull terrier, but it was a hopeless chase. He went into the air in a wild, plunging break down below the end of the stone wall, and the brush was ended.

rier, but it was a hopeless chase. He went into the air in a wild, plunging break down below the end of the stone wall, and the brush was ended.

Elmira is without a record. She is the Ryland T. of the Speedway, frequently showing rare speed in her brushes, but being altogether unreliable, sometimes breaking and at other times seeming to have lost her speed. All the road riders who saw her yesterday agreed that she was never before quite so fast and good-gaited. The mare is by Wilkes Boy, 2:24½, out of Mattle H., 2:29¼, by Blue Bull, and is a half sister to W. H. McCarthy's fast trotter Anna Mace, 2:29½. Swift, 2:16½, and Commodore Porter, 2:13, were the contestants in two of the finest brushes of the day. The stout old son of Nutwood made a losing break at the start in the first round, but he hung on with his usual tenacity, closing on Swift as they neared the bridge and making it a drawn battle at the end. John F. Cockerill drove the Antonio gelding from end to end in the second round, and Swift kept his nose in front all the way. Nathan Straus's Malacca, 2:18½, by Ralph Wilkes, 2:06½, came out in fine form. After beating the good, green horse Tioga, by Fremont, Mr. Straus turned him over to Trainer Issae Fleming for a trial against time and caught him a quarter in 0:32½. His owner doubted the accuracy of the timing, but the horse trotted much faster than ever before. Thomas F. Russell varied the conditions yesterday by driving his brown mare, Princess Sprague, against H. O. Armour's team, Bancroft and Erin G. The pair outfooted the horse in single harness at the first trial, but the mare proved her superiority in the end. Her owner made a lot of use of her and finally had to take the dust of Charles Welland's Salient in a series of one-sided contests. W. J. Clark's honest bay pacer, Mr. Fullerton, 2:21½, from Yonkers, defeated everything he met, including Salient and the speedy sidewheeler, Wood Boy, 2:19½. Among the newcomers on the road was the shapely bay trotting mare Vino, 2:1½, from Yonkers, defeated e

The next meet of the North Jersey Athletic and Driving Association on their grounds at Hohokus, N. J., will take place on July 4, entries for the meeting closing on June 25. There will be a higher class of trotting and increased purse valuations. The events are: First race, 2:5 class, purse $300; second race, 2:17 class, purse $400; third race, 2:38 class, purse $200. Conditions to be the same as at the Decoration Day meet. An unber of bicycle races will be a feature of the afternoon, which will relieve the long waits between heats. Money prizes will be given for the first and second in a mile dash and also for a two-mile open event. There will also be a twenty-dollar silver cup for the winner in the closing one-mile dash, with a seven-dollar medal for the second. Harry Kiefer has charge of this part of the afternoon sport. The association met with a more than anticipated success at the opening of the course and the arrangements for the Fourth of July for the care of visitors will be on a much larger scale.

Ex-Sheriff Creamer's Trotter Wins.

Several hundred admirers of the light harness torse gathered yesterday at the Parkway Driving Club's course, Brooklyn, for the purpose of witnessing a special match race between ex-Sheriff Frank D. Creamer's bay gelding Latitude, 2:15, and Nathaniel Ward's brown pacing gelding Quarterstake, 2:20. The conditions were one mile heats, best two in three, owners to drive, for $100 a side and a basket of wine. The track was in fair condition. The judges were Frederick G. Lemmermann, Harry Muller and G. B. Hurd.

Latitude drew the pole and they got away on the first attempt in the first heat. This proved to be the fastest heat of the race. At the half mile Latitude led by a trifle over a length in 1:07)2. He increased this to two lengths and a half at the finish. Time, 2:18. Despite his poor showing Quarterstake was made the favorite showing Quarterstake was made the favorite in the second heat. He got away in front and kept in the lead to the end. Time, 2:33. In the third heat the horses started on even terms. Neither gained an inch until the upper turn was reached, when Quarterstake broke badly and Latitude opened up such a big gap that he never was headed. He finished handily in 2:28/3.

Another match between the horses was talked of in the clubhouse after the contest and it may be made for next week if Mr. Ward is not satisfied with the result. Sheriff Creamer landed quite a bundle of bets and was offering $100 even money that he would win, despite the fact that on the clubhouse porch Quarterstake wast the favorite when he came out for the last heat. They Drink to Each Other's Health and Then Talk Fight.

Tom Sharkey and Bob Fitzeimmons presented a novel sight on Broadway yesterday afternoon. They strolled into the Delaven House about 3 o'clock and drank to each other's health. Fitz had his left hand swathed in bandages. Naturally the fact that the men were together soon got abroad and they were quickly surrounded by friends. The ex-sailor asked Bob how he felt and when the latter replied "bully" Sharkey seemed apparently relieved.

"I notice you have had a good deal of hard luck lately," said Sharkey. "Yes," replied Fitz good naturedly. "I've had enough to make a dozen men quit. But that is fate, you know, and it is no use to grum-"Is your hand getting better, and when do you expect to fight again?" Tom inquired.

Fitz answered that he had hoped to be able to put on the gloves pretty soon, but could not say when. He thought it quite likely not say when. He thought it quite likely that he would be able to step into the ring about August, but not before then.

"Will you promise me a match as soon as you are ready to scrap again?" Sharkey asked. Fitz replied that he was always prepared to meet any one, but thought that Rublin or Jeffries should receive the preference. "If, however," continued Bob, "you whip Rublin and Jeffries does not face me I'll certainly give you the first crack."

Here the conversation turned to other topics and then the pair parted. Just as Fitz reached the door he was met by Gus Rublin, who cordially greeted the Cornishman. Fitz afterward said:

"I am glad to be able to say that the public has nobly stood by me during my period of hard luck and I am thankful for it. Every one who knows me has extended their sympathy to me and it makes me forget things. I have received various talismans from admirers all over the country and even telegrams. Some have sent to me rabbits' feet and other charms to keep the hoodoo away. I trust that they will have beneficial effects."

To-night.

Terry McGovern and Tommy White of Chicago are reported to be in fine condition for their twenty fiveround bout at Coney Island to-night. The fact that White recently stood McGovern off at Chicago for six rounds leads many of his friends to believe that he will defeat the featherweight champion. White is one of the cleverest lads of his weight in the business, but he is not such a stiff puncher as Terry. The men will clash at 126 pounds, and this will be the first time McGovern has gone out of his class. There will be one preliminary bout of twelverounds. McGovern is a 100 to 70 favorite.

Courtney Seems to Be Pleased With His Crews. ITHACA, June 11 .- To-night there was another change in the make-up of the Cornell freshman crew. Bailinger, who since the race at Phila-delphia has been in the pair-oared gig, was put back at 2 and Benedict, who has been pulling that oar, went back to 6. Pinruecane still holds Long year's seat at bow and it begins to look as though he will row there at Poughkeepsie. In though he will row there at Poughkeepsie. In a little more than a week the crews will start for the scene of the races, and the "old man" is making every effort to put a pair of winners in the field. He is not saying a great deal about crew prospects, but it can be seen that he is by no means discouraged. To-night he sent them over the four-mile course at speed and, while he would not give out their time, it could be seen that he was well pleased. In the "scrap" the 'Varsity finished two lengths ahead of the freshmen, who rowed in good form.

CAMBRIDGE, June 11 .- The Harvard 'Varsity four-oared crew which is to row the Kale four at New London was definitely picked this afterat New London was definitely picked this afternoon by Coach Storrow. The make-up is:

G. Bancroft, '02; McConnell, '01; Henderson,
'01; Builard, '02. This make-up leaves Evans and Lawrence of last year's Varsity crew entirely out of the 'Varsity squad. The men who make up the other boat will be kept in training until the crews leave for New London, although a petition has been made to have the men return to their respective dubs, so as leave in the Metropolitan regatts.
